

Bias Detection Report

The correlation between education levels and gender differences is moderate, with a Cramér's V value of 0.0956. This suggests that there is some association between the two variables, but it is not extremely strong.

